

① What does having power mean?

Having power can mean you have control over others, or it can mean you are capable of doing things others can't. In The Bear the Wasn't, the bear was repeatedly told that he wasn't a bear, all the managers & presidents - told him he was just a silly man that needed a shave and wore a fur coat. He was overpowered, he felt like he was nothing against many.

At times when you try to stand up for yourself, yet there's too many people against you - it's hard. You could even be the only one that's true, but others are too skeptical to believe you. Then you tend to doubt yourself, and it just gets tragic. You have to just stay true to yourself, & never doubt yourself. Because once the bear found a cave in the winter, he stopped & told himself, "I can't go in a cave. I'm not a Bear. I'm a silly man who needs a shave & wears a fur coat." That right there, is bad. You just have to stay true & don't let criticism bring you down.

5
2

2

2